Breastfeeding necklace

This colourful and interesting breastfeeding necklace can help entertain baby while feeding, allowing for a longer, more peaceful feed. Advantages of a breastfeeding necklace:

- Occupies baby's hands, away from your hair or skin or clothes
- Keeps baby's attention focused on the breast area
- Dissuades baby from pulling away at distractions, resulting in longer more filling feeds
- Acts as a soothing and familiar object, thus aiding other caregivers to feed your baby
- Can be used when weaning to signal when it's time for a breastfeed
- Aids tactile and visual stimulation, promoting cognitive development
- Improves hand to eye coordination and tracking
- Aids development of depth perception

- Develops colour and size recognition and can be used as a learning tool. Great for eye spy when they are older ('Where is the red bead?')

Got twins? We can help with our longer twin necklace so two can share comfortably. Have a young child who loves to copy mum by feeding teddies and dolls? Our kids' necklace is perfect for them.

Prices: $20.00
 $25.00 twin length

Thawing and warming breastmilk

- To thaw frozen breastmilk slowly, leave it in the fridge for several hours or overnight. Do not leave it to thaw at room temperature.
- To thaw it quickly, move the container around in a bowl of hot water. Don't use boiling water. Add more hot water to the bowl as it cools and keep swirling the breastmilk until it becomes liquid.
- To warm cold breastmilk, place the container of milk in hot water until the milk reaches body temperature. You can use a bowl, jug or saucepan of hot water or an electric drink warmer. Test the temperature by dropping a little onto your wrist before offering it to your baby. It should feel warm, but not hot. Some mums and babies are happy to use expressed breastmilk thawed but not warmed.
- Don't use a microwave oven to thaw or heat breastmilk. Microwaves heat unevenly and can create hot spots in your baby's milk which may burn their mouth. Microwaving can also damage the nutrients and immune factors in breastmilk.
- Expressed breastmilk will separate into layers – this is normal. It may also freeze in layers but is easily mixed once thawed. Just give the container a gentle shake.
